Note to Interested Trainees

Thank you for your interest

We at Good Grief are delighted that you are interested in becoming a Good Grief Facilitator. Good Grief's mission is dependent on the compassion and creativity of its volunteers. A facilitator has many characteristics, but the most noticeable attribute is empathetic listening. The role of a facilitator is to facilitate the expression of emotions and stories within a support group. A support group consists of a maximum of 12 participants, all of whom are similar in age. Support groups are intended for children, teens, young adults, and adults to express their emotions and mourn with other people experiencing a similar loss. Support groups do not consist of counseling or therapy, and our objective is not to "fix" children or their families.

We require facilitators to make a one year commitment, meeting each week for three and a half hours during our program cycles on Thursday evenings. We support our facilitators with a half hour Pre-Group, which is a time to reflect on the evening and get support with other facilitators, before meeting with their group on a Night of Support (NOS). After facilitators meet with their group, they will have time to reflect on the night with their co-facilitator, sharing and discussing their role and those confidential things that cannot leave the Good Grief Center. Finally, the NOS concludes with a half hour Post-Group, which is a time for all the facilitators to convene. The Post-Group is fundamental to the facilitator's self-care, and is a time to share how the evening has affected the facilitator. The structure of an NOS is intended to create a safe space for all participants and their facilitators, allowing facilitators to hear painful and joyful stories as empathetic listeners, without the evening having detrimental effects on the facilitator's personal life. All aspects of the NOS are required.

If the role of a facilitator interests you, we welcome your application and look forward to speaking further with you. If this role does not meet your talents and abilities, please let us know, you may still be a part of Good Grief in other capacities. We always welcome questions and concerns. Please feel free to share this information with anyone you think might be interested. Again, thank you for your interest in the mission of Good Grief.

With gratitude,

Joseph Primo, CEO
